Ash glaze, as the name suggests, is a glaze derived from ashes. The earliest such glazes can be traced back to the Shang period in China (c. 1500 B.C.), and it is thought they were produced accidentally, the result of white-hot wood ash being carried through the kiln with the draft of the fire and settling onto the pots, where the searing white heat melted it to a glass.

Ash Glazes by Phil Rogers

This guide first sketches the history of ash glazes. It then discusses the practicalities of collecting and testing wood ashes, how to make them into glazes and then use them to glaze your pots. It also looks at a group of international artists who use ash glazes on their work.

That book is quite iconic for ceramists and potters and I would never imagine to find it on Amazon ! I did and get it in a very short time. The book deals with Ash Glazes for potteries and ceramics and the author Phil Rogers not only provided a large overview of the technic but he kindly shared lot of experience he did and even how to get closed results by using oxidation firing.
